THE IDEA GROWS.

Sentiment In Favor of International Bimetallism.

England Getting Up a Memorial to Present to Parliament.

Hon. James B. McCrory, says a Washington dispatch to the Chicago Evening Post, whose resignation from the Monetary Conference has not been accepted and may not be, is in constant communication with the acquaintances made during the conference and the trend of his communication shows that the sentiment in favor of an international agreement is growing rapidly. He is strongly inclined to the belief that the chances for an international agreement of a fixed ratio between gold and silver are very good. A letter received by him from the President of the Bimetallist League of England informs him that the growth of the bimetallist idea there is increasing daily. They are getting up a memorial to present to Parliament showing the strength of the bimetallist idea and the writer says that influential names are being secured very easily and in good numbers. Then, too, the financial distress in various parts of the empire tends to foster the sentiment.

Mr. McCrory is particularly pleased with the postponement of the conference to next November, and so is the President of the British Bimetallist League. That the chances of the adoption of some agreement will be much improved by the postponement both men feel sure. If sufficient agitation is secured, Mr. McCrory would not be surprised if an agreement were reached at the next meeting, although he is very certain that were the meeting to be held now, as originally intended, there would be no likelihood of reaching an agreement. The chief difficulty in the way is, of course, England. That country has been a monometallist for so long it is hard to induce her to change. But more difficult things have been accomplished, and Mr. McCrory thinks that in time even England can be induced to change her mind.

When that time comes the rest of work will be, he thinks, easy. The way which England exercises in the financial world is very powerful, and though Germany has not exhibited any signs of an impetuous desire for bimetallism, there is little doubt she would get into the band wagon immediately she saw England occupying a seat therein. And the opinion of Mr. McCrory seems to voice the opinion of most of the financial men at present in Washington. That something will have to be done they appear to agree, and that something takes the shape of an international agreement on a uniform ratio of value between gold and silver. Until that is secured they predict that there will be a ceaseless nervous unrest in the financial world. It may be that their opinions are unduly affected by the recent flurry of failures. But that their belief is as stated is an indisputable fact. They believe, too, that when such an agreement is reached the free silver cranks will be disposed to let their agitation drop, and that of itself would be a distinct gain, for while there is not the slightest likelihood of a free silver bill becoming a law while Mr. Cleveland is in the White House, yet the free silverites are strong enough to scare the timid, and it is that many believe which is responsible in a great measure for the present state of things. Ex-Director of the Mint Leach, now Vice President and Cashier of the National Union Bank of New York, believes that the present condition of things will continue for some time.

But it should be said that the opinion of Col. Leach is not the voice of the financial men of Washington. Controller Eckels, who, through his bank examinations throughout the country, keeps pretty well informed of the true state of affairs, believes that in a short time things will mend and that the confidence of a year ago will be restored. He regards the recent failures as the weak spot, and he says that they are there, and thereby serves as a guide for future safe conduct. He believes, however, with Mr. McCrory that much will be gained if an international agreement is the outcome of the bimetallist conference, and it is pretty safe to say that President Cleveland thinks so, too.

A ROLL OF HONOR.

That's What The Pension List Must Be.

Washington, June 3.—Gen. H. V. Boynton, over his own signature, speaks at length of pension reform in today's Post. The following are extracts from the communication:

"By the action of the highest officials of the Grand Army of the Republic, quite as much as by the recent orders of the new democratic secretary of the interior and the commissioner of pensions, the country has been brought face to face with the gravities and the serious perplexities of the pension problem.

"The examination ordered by the secretary of the interior strikes at the root of the trouble. It probably affords the most practical way of testing the real condition of the pension roll. It will be time enough to condemn it when the time of the government, as a result of this proceeding, is unjustly laid upon a single deserving pensioner. No administration, and above all no democratic administration can withstand the shock that will come to it if any veteran, disabled by wounds or disease in the service, is dropped from the pension roll, which he honors. On the other hand, every deserving veteran suffers if unworthy pensioners are not dropped from what should be an uncontaminated roll of honor.

THREE KILLED.

Lightning Plays Sad Havoc at a Sunday Gathering.

Frankfort, Ky., June 5.—During a severe rain and electric storm, which passed over this section last night, the house of a farmer named John Redding, in the neighborhood of Switzer's, a station on the Kentucky Midland railroad, was struck by lightning and three of the occupants instantly killed while several others were badly stunned.

Those killed were young Mr. Redding and a Miss Redding, son and daughter of the gentleman whose house it was, and a young man named Barbour, who with a number of other young people had spent the afternoon there.

There were seventeen persons in the house at the time.

There was at the same time a heavy wind, which tore up and blew down shade trees in this city, and did considerable damage in various parts of the county.

Big Loss.

The Evansville Courier says:

"The storm which passed over Paducah on Wednesday morning, doing considerable damage in that city, caused a great deal of destruction at Brooklyn, Ill., a landing about three miles below Paducah on the Illinois side of the river. The greater portion of the loss was sustained by Evansville people.

Mr. Allen Gray last evening said the damage was not done by a cyclone as had been reported, but was a straight hurricane which struck Brooklyn with a tremendous force. The greatest damage done was to property in the river. Two large Pittsburg coal boats belonging to Gray Bros., of this city, were torn to pieces. One of the wrecked boats contained 250,000 feet of lumber and the other was loaded with coal. A coal float containing 1,200 tons belonging to Gray Bros., was also sunk. Mr. Allen Gray could not give a statement of his losses last night, but thought they would be about $5,500.

DUBOSE GUILTY.

Two of the Charges Held Against the Memphis Judge.

Nashville, Tenn., June 2.—The case of Judge Julius J. Dubose, of Shelby county, was disposed of today by the court of impeachment. The house of representatives preferred thirty six charges against him, and today the senate found him guilty of two of them. Judge Dubose was declared not guilty of thirty-four of the charges.

One of those in which he was found guilty was that which charges him with arresting one Henry Kennedy after he had been released from jail on a habeas corpus before Judge Estes, of the circuit court. In short, he disregarded a habeas corpus. The other charge on which he was convicted is that of trying to get Mrs. Lady P. McBride to give up $10,000 worth of property which had been doled out to her by the chancery court in divorce proceedings. The proof showed that Judge Dubose was working in the interest of the divorced husband.

This decision of the court of impeachment removes Judge Dubose from the bench as judge of the criminal court of Shelby county.

SAME TREATMENT.

A Negro Lynched in the North.

Decatur, Ill., June 3.—Twenty-five men walked into this city of 22,000 people this morning and strung up a man on the principal street without any opposition. The victim was Samuel Bush, a negro, accused of murdering two white women. The details of the lynching were sensational from start to finish. Bush was in jail awaiting trial.

Giving the Drunkard His Choice.

In its issue of April 15, the Chicago Tribune has the following editorial, discussing the late bill before the Michigan State Senate:

The Michigan Senate has passed a bill which ought to become a law. It provides that the man who gets drunk and is arrested for that offense may either pay the ordinary fine and locked up if he cannot pay it, or give a satisfactory bond that he will go to some good place where men are treated for the liquor habit and be cured of his disease. If a man says he wants to be cured, but is too poor to foot the bill then the expense be paid by the county. In such case justice of the peace and police magistrates are empowered to sentence drunkards to some institution.

It will be impossible to tell how this plan will work until it has been tested thoroughly. It may be a great success or may amount to very little, owing to unforeseen causes. Therefore, it is better that the experiment should be tried thoroughly in one State. If it succeeds there, the example of Michigan will be followed speedily by other States.

There is not a county in Michigan but has its common drunkards, who generally gravitate with their families to the poor house and become a county charge. Looking at the matter from a business point of view, it would be economy often for the county to pay the expense of freeing these men of the drink habit and converting them from paupers and the breeders of paupers into self supporting members of the community, needing others in bearing the burden of taxation. There is no more economic and profitable expenditure of money than for the reformation of drunkards and for the keeping of the young from acquiring criminal habits. If a man needs a doctor or medicine, and is too poor to employ the one or buy the other, the community attend to his needs. There is no reason why a man who has the drink disease and wants to be cured of it, but has not the money, should not be helped to emancipate himself. It may be that when a drunkard makes his appearance in the police court, sick all over, disgusted with and ashamed of himself, he will be more likely to think favorably of going to a Gold Cure Institution than at any other time. After his headache is over and he is at work again, he feels more confident in his ability to resist temptation. He makes those promises which drunkards are in the habit of making, and keeps them for a week or a month. If he is caught when in his object and dejected state, he may be glad to avail himself of the alternative of getting some one to give him bond that he will get cured. The experiment is worth trying.

Killed While Hunting.

Paducah, Ky., June 2.—Yesterday afternoon while Louis Wald, the 18 year old son of J. F. S. Wald, the Postmaster and merchant at Coy, Marshall county, was out hunting with a party of friends on horseback, his gun was accidentally discharged. The entire load of the shell lodged in his neck and produced death after lingering in terrible agony a few hours.

CYCLONE COUNTY.

Eldorado, Ark., Is Struck by the Vicious, Funnel-Shaped Monster.

Eldorado, Ark., June 3.—This place was swept by a terrible cyclone last night. The destruction to property is enormous, but owing to the excitement at present prevailing no estimate of the loss can be compiled. The inhabitants were taken by surprise and the twister was before them, leaving trees' houses and fences literally in splinters before its presence was realized. From fifteen to twenty-five persons, perhaps more, are killed and badly injured. A hard rain accompanied and followed the storm, adding to the ruin. Reports from the adjoining neighborhood are coming in slowly, as the wires are prostrated, and washes or overflows have stopped traffic over the roads. Growing crops are totally destroyed and the bulk of the loss will fall on the agriculture element, in the county at least.

EULALIE.

INFANTA OF SPAIN.

Our guests, Infanta Eulalie, of Spain, and her husband, Prince Antonio, of Bourbon, are having a good time of it. Infanta Eulalie is the daughter of Queen Isabella, a sister of the late King Alfonso, and aunt of the present little King of Spain. Her title, Infanta of Spain, means child of Spain. In olden times the King was considered the father of his country, but Spain was the only country where the King's children received the official title of "child of the country." Infanta Eulalie is still young and has one child. Her husband is her cousin; her mother's sister, having married the Duke of Montpensier, son of the late King Louis Philippe, of France. We heartily welcome the Nation's guests and hope they will a royal, good time of it.

CALDWELL COUNTY.

W. H. Paul, an old citizen of Princeton and Caldwell county, died at his home here last Friday morning after a long and lingering illness. He was in his sixty-third year.

The end of the Prohibition fight did not terminate with the election which was held here on the 20th of May. The wets won in that election but the Probs do not propose to let the matter end here. The courts have been appealed to and if the circuit court decides that the grounds of contest are not well taken and does not sustain them then the higher courts will be appealed to. Said a prominent Prohibitionist to us a day or two ago: "I am willing to contribute my means to fight this contest and if nothing else is accomplished but a long delay I will have the satisfaction of knowing that Princeton will be rid of police while the court has this matter in hand." The wets are confident that the election will be declared legal and the contest will not amount to much. Be this as it may it is hardly probable that any one will take out license while this suit of contest is pending.

PERISHED BY FIRE.

Twenty-Six Miners Burned to Death in a Mexican Colliery.

Eagle Pass, Texas, June 4.—Twenty-six miners, employed in the Fuentecol mine, in Mexico, four miles from here, were burned to death yesterday afternoon.

The Mexican International railway, which recently came into the possession of the mine, is operating a narrow gauge road with a small locomotive, which penetrates the main entry, hauling in empty and bringing out loaded cars. This main entry is lined on the side and at the top with crosscut timber, and three airshafts supply the mine with ventilation. The entrance of the track is on the north side of a range of hills, through which it passes down an incline to the mouth of the tunnel on the banks of the Escondido river. The workings are all to the east of the main entry and fifty men were employed taking out coal.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, shortly after the locomotive left, the mine was discovered to be on fire and smoke and flames were seen issuing out of the airshaft. About one-half of the miners were working near the main tunnel and these made their escape, leaving twenty-six of their number to perish from the heat and smoke and from the poisonous gases which spread like lightning to every portion of the mine.

All the miners employed were Mexicans, and most of them left destitute families. It is reported that the persons responsible for the management of the mines have been placed under arrest pending an investigation of the cause of the disaster. But for the prompt action of the officials of the Mexican International railway and their heroic efforts, the mine would have been destroyed, and none of the bodies would have been recovered.

This is the first disaster in the history of coal mining in Mexico. Large numbers of friends and relatives of the unfortunate miners are gathered at the mouth of the mine mutely awaiting the recovery of the bodies of their sons and husbands. When a body is taken out there is no outbreak of grief but a look of quiet resignation and deep grief appears on every countenance. Hundreds of people from Eagle Pass and Piedras Negras have visited the scene to-day, and the smoke is still issuing from the airshafts, impressing on all the folly of hoping any of the imprisoned miners are yet alive.

An Editor's Prayer.

The following over the non de plane of "Unknown Author," appeared in a recent number of the Ocala Capital. Forward, turn forward, oh time in your flight; turn me a fortune and set me up right. I am weary of running in debt for my clothes and owing for grub that down my throat goes; weary of working for what I have not, weary of working for what I have got. Never, no never, turn backward for me; for well I remember my good mother's knee; I remember the slipper came down with a slam whenever I got in the blackberry jam. The days, too, at school were a terrible bore, when I was obliged to stand on the floor, and all in the world that I ever done was to wink at a girl—pure matter of fun. The days of the past, like days that we meet, composed of a fair mixture of bitter and sweet. So forward, turn forward old time, in your way, and give me some cash just enough for today.

MR. T. E. C. BRINLY

Has the following to say about the Electrotype and how it cures after effects of La Grippe.

Office Brinly, Miles, Hardy Co., Louisville, January 30, 1893.

Gentle: While attending the Memphis Fair some months ago, I was attacked with severe pains in my arms and legs, the effect of grippe of last winter. I met your agent there, Mr. Harriet, who is an old friend, and he insisted that I use the Electrotype at his office, which I did with wonderful results. In a short time the pains left me, and I concluded to rent a "Pain-Exposer" when my neural time had expired. I bought it, and would not part with it for any consideration. It is certainly a wonderful instrument, and it is more wonderful as to how it does its work than I think it is the duty of every man to make known to the afflicted anything that will be of any benefit to them, and the Electrotype certainly will. Very respectfully, T. E. C. BRINLY.

Mr. Brinly is one of the oldest and best know plow manufacturers in the country. The diseases cured by the Electrotype are not confined to any particular class of ailments. By its use oxygen is absorbed through the pores and membranes, adds strength and vigor to the entire system, and will cure any disease where there is vitality to build on and a cure possible. We invite all to call or write and get full particulars.

He responded in his usually vigorous style and was applauded to the echo. He said, among other things, that the 'blind tigers' could be broken up, and that speedily, if those who vote against saloons would make an honest effort to that end. 'Just here,' said he, 'I wish to give my prohibition friends a little wholesome advice. Stop drinking. Keep that jug out of your homes, your offices and your business houses. If we are to break up the 'tigers' the honesty of our efforts must not be given the lie by our action. We must be consistent, and if those who voted against saloons will do their duty, in forty-eight hours every 'blind tiger' in Russellville will be closed.' In a sequestered, wooded spot, by a cooling stream—a very pleasant contemplation this for city folk.

CLEMENT BY ACCLAMATION.

The Salem Convention Proves To Be A Great Democratic Love Feast.

The Contest Settled Without A Ballot and the Time Consumed in Speech-Making and Hand-Shaking.

The Salem convention is over, Clement is the nominee, and if there is a disgruntled Democrat in the whole district he has not yet been seen, heard of, or dreamed about. When the district committee began the work of naming the nominee by calling the precinct meetings, the candidates pledged a cheerful obedience to any and all things that happened; the conduct of every candidate at Salem fully redeemed every pledge made, and the example set by the defeated candidates—Flanary, Skelton, Todd and Yates, is worthy of imitation for all time to come in this Legislative district, and every Democrat should store it away in his mind for handy reference at all conventions hereafter held. The Salem convention Tuesday was a model; it was held by the young Democracy of the district, and with all due respect for the older soldiers in the cause, the Press tips its hat to the young men—the hope and stay of the party in the future—and pronounces it the best piece of work of the kind from foundation to capstone, ever conducted in this district. There was no wire-pulling, no juggling at the start; there was no bossism, no arbitrary conduct, no disposition to unfairness during the entire proceedings; there was no grumbling, no sulking, no shirking at the finish. It was a veritable Democratic love feast, inspired by the spirits of Jefferson and Jackson, cheered by the presence of Grover in the White House, moved to a renewed plighting of vows to be true to the faith by oratory of Evans, Maxwell, Grassham, James and Hendrick, and the sound and sensible advice of Moore and Clark. The farewell greeting of every delegate, defeated candidate and spectator was, "now let us rally to the nominee, and give him the old time majority."

THE PRECINCT MEETINGS.
The precinct meetings last Saturday were, as a whole, better attended than any heretofore held, and the proceedings in the main were entirely harmonious. The strength of each candidate as indicated by precincts was as follows:
Clement.—Marion No. 3, 3 votes; Dyeusburg 5, Union 4, Sheridan 3, Smithland 6, Salem 7, Carversville 8, Total, first choice, 36.
Flanary.—Marion Nos. 1, 2 and 4, 9 votes; Ford's Ferry 3, Bells Mines 7, Total, first choice, 19.
Skelton.—Dyers Hill 6, Loda 4, Total 10.
Todd.—Piney 6, Driskell 4, Total 10.
Yates.—Tolu 4.
The first man to be dropped would have been Yates and then his four were instructed for Clement, which would have given 40. With Todd and Skelton out, Driskell would have gone to Clement giving him 44 votes, while Dyers Hill, Loda and Piney would have gone to Flanary, giving him 35 votes. This would have nominated Clement with four votes to spare—40 being necessary for choice, Pan Handle not being represented at the convention.

THE OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS.

R. C. WALKER, Sec'y.

Every candidate had some precinct.
Sexton Springs stood by instruction this time.

P. S. Maxwell put the name of F. M. Clement before the convention and he did it handsomely.

Sam Nunn made the convention roar with mirth when he told how faithful he had been to all of the candidates.

In putting the name of Dr. Todd before the convention, H. V. McClellan demonstrated his ability to speak, and speak well.

I haven't got a better friend than Maj. Clement, and let me tell you I am for him. I can not only vote, but I can work for him.—J. W. Skelton.

Mr. Skelton said that he was still ambitious and that his defeat would "put him after John Hendrick the sooner." Skelton made a good speech and that speech made him friends.

Steph Johnson had the credentials from Sexton Springs; everybody wanted to see Steph as he was the Sexton Springs delegate at the Princeton convention.

This was Skelton's second race for the legislature, as the third time is said to be the charm, and the charm, John should not be discouraged, but pick his flint and come again.

Dr. Todd responded gracefully when called upon for a speech. Among other things he said: Yes sir, I am for Maj. Clement. He is the right man in the right place, and old Piney will do her duty in November.

As usual Pan Handle was not represented. According to reports there are 17 Democrats in that precinct, no one ever saw them, however, and convention Democrats are beginning to doubt the existence of such a place as Pan Handle.

In his speech Judge Yates said: "For 32 years I have been a Democrat I am a Democrat yet, I have rode over the district with Major Clement. He is a perfect gentleman, a worthy man, and let me tell you I can vote for him with a vim."

Temporary Chairman, Sam Clark, said that he had gone down in defeat twice, "but it appeared that each fall made him the better Democrat. Let our preceding be harmonious, and old Livingston will give the nominee from 350 to 500 majority." You will never find a better man nor a better Democrat than S. G. Clark.

Judge Yates lost his home precinct but came up with Tolu snugly tucked under his arm. The canvass was no disadvantage to him. The people have found him to be a pleasant, affable as well as sensible gentleman. Mr. Clement has known and been intimately associated with the Dyeusburg people "since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary," while Yates has been there only a few years.

Dr. J. N. Todd carried Shady Grove, his home precinct, by acclamation, and certainly has reasons to be proud of the endorsement given him by his home people—people who have known and been associated with him all of his life. The high appreciation in which his home people hold him, as expressed Saturday, took all the sting of defeat away. While the doctor will not go to the Legislature he will go right on making money, practicing medicine.

When all of the vanquished had spoken, the call for Clement was deafening, and when he appeared, he was greeted with applause. He said that words were inadequate to express his gratitude, and it was a proud moment for him. The men whom he had defeated were good men. He would do all in his power to win the fight, and if elected no man would be more faithful, more devoted to efforts to honestly and fearlessly represent the district. His ability might be over estimated but his desire, his honesty of purpose could not be over estimated. We will have no walk over in November, let us be up and doing to win the fight.

Crittenden is prouder than ever of O. M. James. His speech withdrawing Flanary and Todd from the convention was a master piece of eloquence. For thirty minutes he held the convention spell-bound. He hewed out the way for the regiment of harmonious feelings that surrounded and enveloped the entire convention. When he had finished there was not a discordant thought in the assembly, and the spirit of the gifted young orator spread, like a benediction, over the crowd, moved the candidates to utterance of a similar nature, and peace, harmony and good feelings carried the day.

THE SENATORIAL RACE.

At the precinct meetings Saturday, every precinct in the county instructed its delegates to vote for S. O. Nunn in the convention called to nominate a candidate for the State Senate. According to the reports the action of the Democrats in a large majority of the precincts was practically unanimous.

THE TAX VOTED DOWN.

The school tax was voted down Saturday. The vote stood 52 against the tax and 28 for it. The old house was condemned by the Superintendent before the election. The house being condemned, and no provisions what-ever for a new one, the question naturally arises: "Where are we at now?" Without a house we can have no school; without a school the public money cannot be drawn from the State Treasury. Unless the Superintendent can be prevailed upon to reconsider his order condemning the old house, the public school in the Marion district will be in the middle of a very bad fix.

While the tax was overwhelmingly defeated, the people elected for trustees two avowed school-tax men—H. A. Haynes and R. C. Walker, who in conjunction with Mr. J. N. Clark will constitute the board of trustees, every member of which is for a new house, and a tax to build and maintain it, thus the trustees have bound, if the newly elected ones qualify. It is punishment enough to be a trustee with everything your own way, with a house, with a tax, with teachers and with a united support from the patrons, but to be a trustee without a house, without the means of getting one, with a divided people, more than politics, and politics, is a Lexington man, "hades" spelled the old fashion way. The people of Marion should hold a public meeting for the discussion of the matter, agree upon some measure, bury the tomahawk, rub off the war paint, and while taking a puff at the pipe of peace, lay down about $7,000 for a school house, one half to be raised by taxation, the other by private subscription. Then build a house sufficiently large for a graded free school, to be run independent of any academy or college so far as management is concerned. But should the trustees be sufficiently large to accommodate an academy under a management entirely independent of the public free school.

MISS MOORE RETURNS.

Miss Sallie Moore, about whom so much has been written and printed, returned from New York to Marion last week. Reaching here Thursday night, she went direct to the home of her sister where she has since remained in seclusion. She brought the baby with her.

It is presumed that she came back to be present when her case against Mr. L. W. Cruce is called for trial in the Circuit Court. The case will be called for trial July 4.

HAS RESIGNED.

Postmaster Coffield has sent in his resignation, and unless affairs are mixed that Congressmen Stone can not tell who is wanted by the people, Marion is pretty sure to have a new P. M., this week.

SERIOUS CHARGES SUSTAINED.

Rev. John T. Yates, a well known local preacher, of this county, was before the quarterly conference of the Methodist church at Hurricane Saturday, charged with immorality, and by a vote 13 to 5 the charges were sustained and the accused disbarred from preaching and expelled from the church.

Mr. H. K. Woods has a few weeks leave of absence from the drugstore. Mr. E. M. Newcomb, has charge while Mr. Woods is enjoying his furlough.

The one light heard of Saturday is reported from Baker's school house, Berry Rich and Ben Carroll had a "scrap" after the convention adjourned. Nobody dangerously wounded.

A few days ago lightning came very near calling Mr. M. G. Gilbert away. A wire clothes line connected two trees in his yard, lighting struck one and the wire took it to the other. The shock to the inmates of the house was severe.

Ladies if you want a cheap hat go to Mrs. Sallie Dorr's.

CHICAGO LETTER.

Special Correspondence to Press.

The Kentucky building has been dedicated, and Daniel Boone stands sentinel over the Chicago home of the Kentuckians. The editors have come amid the blare of trumpets, seen the sights, and quietly folded up their tents and stole away. Within the confines of the White City things are taking on a gala appearance. The exhibits are all in place and the gardens are abloom in all the gorgeous hues of the tropics. The Ceylonese with their bright little eyes and sharp features have discarded the non de script garments which were, by courtesy, called overcoats, and now appear in their picturesque native costumes. All this denotes the arrival of summer, and consequently an increased attendance. From now on to the close of the Fair one may safely count upon beautiful weather, and the grounds will swarm with visitors from all over the world.

I have been to the Fair daily for several weeks and have not been in one half the buildings, nor have I been able to thoroughly see the exhibits in any single one; not that it is at all crowded, but there are so many beautiful and interesting sights that I have skipped from this display to that trying to see the best of everything. But alas, there seems no "best." A friend remarked to me, "have you seen those beautiful Florentine Sculptures?" I had not, so I spent an hour among some of the most beautiful works of art of those renowned workers in marble. Another suggests the idea of a visit to the Forrester building, and I enter this, the largest building the world has ever seen constructed of logs, and find it filled with displays of woods in their rough state and also highly polished, birch and bows. The celebrated Tank of India, upon which the natives trace the most delicate carving. The giant Redwood, of California; the Cedar, of Lebanon; the Poplar, Ash, Oak, Hickory, Mulberry and all the familiar woods of our own country together with both rare and common woods that the uttermost parts of the earth have been ransacked for to add to the beauty and interest of this building devoted to forestry. A few hours passed here will amply repay the visitor.

I was standing with a friend to-day looking at some Russians at work upon their country's display when he remarked, "Colonel did it ever strike you that the good Lord has showed many blessings upon us Americans?" I replied yes I appreciate the fact that we had a beautiful country a wise and good government, "I do not mean that, he interrupted, look how he has blessed us individually; now those Russians are representative of the highest skilled labor and they look and act like slaves, while our mechanics occupying the same relative position are well dressed independent and intelligent. Look at those miserable Javanese with their bare feet and treacherous features; the Ceylonese with their shifty eyes. Those immodest sensual Algerians, and what can that much laden personage, the gay Gondalier from Sunny Italy." I had to admit that would prefer being a Kentucky Colonel to any of those people from foreign parts, for to tell the truth they are a hard looking lot. The European, however, with all their little peculiarities come nearer being "white people," but even they do not appear to come up to the standard, and I think the creator of all things that it was so fixed that I was made an American.

Of all the exhibits that I have seen the Fisheries building is the most interesting; I never before realized how much the Government was doing toward propagating and improving the fish of the country. In this building is shown the system of hatching the eggs of fish, and one can follow the process through its different stages to the time when a queer little creature goes paddling about with a body like a mustard seed, with a little tail sticking out of its swinging about in a big glass jar. When these get to a size and age when they can take care of themselves they are distributed by the Government to the creeks and rivers for the benefit of the people. In this building in immense transparent tanks are shown all the various varieties of fresh and salted fish, turtles, eels, crabs, lobsters, oysters and an 101 peculiar inhabitants of the water. There is also shown the various methods of catching fish of not only our own people but that of all nations. This building is usually crowded by a curious throng.

In glancing over the register in the Kentucky building I was surprised to find that I did not see the name of a Crittenden county man. Can it be possible that all the gentlemen of Crittenden have the same excuse that our worthy editor gave for not coming to Chicago with his brother of the quill? If so all I can say is God bless the babies.

THE STORM LAST WEDNESDAY caught Mr. L. H. James of this place aboard of a steamboat between Carversville and Smithland. It is said that he felt better now than he did then. They do say that men on that steamer would have given their possession to have been on terra firma at the time, and Mr. James says he would have been pretty liberal himself in buying shore dirt.

On the 1st Sheriff Franks executed bond for the collection of county levy for the year 1893. His bondsmen are J. W. Guess, S. F. Pickens, G. B. Crawford, D. S. Babb, A. C. Chidley, W. J. Deboe, A. A. Deboe, A. C. and A. Towery.

Mr. Jas. Stone, of Tolu, was in town yesterday. He has been on a trip through the blue grass region of the State, returning by Hopkinsville for his sister Miss Sallie who accompanied him home.

The only light heard of Saturday is reported from Baker's school house, Berry Rich and Ben Carroll had a "scrap" after the convention adjourned. Nobody dangerously wounded.

A few days ago lightning came very near calling Mr. M. G. Gilbert away. A wire clothes line connected two trees in his yard, lighting struck one and the wire took it to the other. The shock to the inmates of the house was severe.

RED FRONT.

Mr. William Weldon Dead.
Last week we announced the critical condition of Mr. Wm. Weldon, of Pinkneyville, and now it is our painful duty to chronicle his death, which occurred at his home last Friday.
Mr. Wm. Weldon was one of the few surviving early settlers of this section of Kentucky, and like most of them, he was a man of strong character, and he placed his imprint upon the present generation.
He was born in South Carolina in 1802, and in the thirties, probably 1832, he came to Kentucky, settling on a farm four miles south of Marion. Here, out of the forests, he hewed a farm and lived to work. For many years he lived there; many sons and daughters were born unto him, and found among our best citizens are found many of his descendants.
He was one of the foundation stones of Crittenden county; an honest, industrious man, possessing the kindly virtues that go to make a solid citizenship.
Throughout the county the school trustee elections were fairly well attended.
Dr. David Morton, Secretary of the Church Extension Board, will dedicate the new church at Kelsey Sunday July 9.
Rev. B. F. Orr filled the pulpit at the Methodist church at this place Sunday night.
People's Party Meeting.
The various committees in the county are requested to meet in Marion on next Monday, June 12th, 1893, and all the members of the party are urgently requested to attend said meeting, as there is business of importance that should be attended to.
W. H. Brown, Chm. C. C. Jno. Riley, Sec'y.
Dr. W. M. Carter, optician special list, will be in Marion, Ky., at Dr. Stone's office, June 18 and 19. He will examine eyes for all errors of refraction, and adjust glasses; examination free.
Letter List.
Following is a list of letters remaining in the post-office at Marion unclaimed for: Lee Baker, H. J. Brooks, Tommie Clement, W. T. Craine, Adm. Ellis, Robt. Elgin, Sallie French, G. M. Foster, Rebecca Gregory, W. H. Gibson, Maggie Hughes, A. C. Hill, W. G. Holland, J. B. Holland, W. A. James, Frank Jennings, Sam Martin, C. W. Rowland, W. S. Shelley, Gillie Thurman, Steven Tripp, W. INTERESTING TO POTATO GROWERS.

Prevention of Scab by Treating Seed Tubers With Corrosive Sublimates.

Recent writers who claim to have investigated the subject of preventing potato scab by treatment of the seed tubers before planting have not greatly encouraged the idea or indicated that it would be economical. H. H. H. of the North Dakota station, who has been a firm advocate of this course, has, however, just given the subject a fresh airing in The Rural New Yorker with the aid of illustrations, and he states that after another year's trial not only at the station, but among potato growers, the corrosive sublimate treatment has proved effective in a degree beyond previous expectation.

Under date of Oct. 10, 1902, T. B. Terry, the famous Ohio potato grower, is quoted as follows: "I treated some 40 or 50 bushels of badly scabbed seed recommended and have a crop almost perfectly smooth. Crop from badly scabbed seed (untreated) worthless."

Mr. Terry reports that tests of 1891 showed a net gain of half a pound per hill in favor of the corrosive sublimate treatment as against untreated seed of like character, while the number of tubers set upon the vines was on an average five less per hill than in rows heavily diseased.

The results of the past summer's work when averaged for all tests of the treatment, show an average gain of a fraction over half a pound per hill in favor of the treatment and 80 per cent of total product void of disease, while the untreated seed of like character and weight gave a product in which less than 1 per cent of sound tubers were found.

The second cut shows the character of the product obtained by the use of the corrosive sublimate treatment.

A number of other promising treatments were tried at the same time and under the same conditions as the corrosive sublimate test, among them the bordeaux mixture. Concerning these it is simply said that after no treatment which all showed the percentage of disease did not yield as low as that of the highest yield from untreated seed.

In all these tests seeds that had never known previous potato crop, or a fertilizer were used, subjected to equal conditions and planted at the same time. The seed used was Early Ohio tubers of like weight and amount of disease surface as could be obtained.

TREATMENT WITH CORROSIVE SUBLIMATE.

The method of application is as follows: Dissolve corrosive sublimate (mercuric bichloride) in water at the rate of 2 ounces of the chemical to 15 gallons of water. Soak the seed potatoes in this solution 14 hours, cut and plant as usual. From this it will be seen that no plain disease which is successfully combated is susceptible to a scabby treatment, one so easily carried out.

Precautions to be taken in this connection.

Mercuric bichloride is a strong poison. Be as careful with it as with all other poisons. The mixture should stand some time before it is used, to insure complete solution of the chemical, which should be thoroughly pulverized before it is added to the water. Plant only on ground known to be free from disease.

Farm Horses.

At this season of the year the road is muddy, and many horses have scratches. Here is some timely advice from the agricultural department of the New York World on the care of horses at this most trying of all seasons for them: "To move all dirt from legs and feet before stabling the horses for the night. If any case of grease or scratches occurs, wash carefully in tepid water and white castile soap. Dry thoroughly and anoint with carbolated ointment that may be made from lard 15 parts and carbolic acid 1 part. Very likely the muscles of the horses are more or less stiff, owing to the cold of this winter. If such be the case, let them be put to work gradually in the spring to avoid galls and stiff limbs.

"Be sure that the collar fits properly before you begin the plowing. Parts under the collar from which the skin becomes easily abraded may be calloused and hardened by daily bathing them with cold water to which a little salt and vinegar has been added. If a possible thing, give each horse a good, roomy stall, in which he can readily recline, and that, too, at full length. Great care is needed to regulate the diet of horses to the work they do. When hard work is required, we must feed liberally, and in periods of idleness the ration must be cut short or trouble will follow. For farm horses in full and regular labor 12 quarts, half oats and half cracked corn, will be found none too much. Hay is best fed in moderate quantities. Most farm horses get too much hay, hay which becomes moderately distended, and we call them 'pot bellied.' Ten pounds per day per horse is an abundance. The farm horse for his work should, 'low down' horses, that can draw fair loads and move with some facility and agility. The fast walker is a great treasure where loads preclude for the most part the possibility of trotting or cantering.

Schooling at Twenty Dollars a Year.

However moderate the expense of a student of the present time may be he can hardly reach the extremely modest sum which sufficed for Jean Marnoncel, a French poet, during the reign of Louis XV, for a year's schooling. In his 'Memoirs' he speaks of his school life as follows:

"I was lodged, as was the custom of the school, with five other scholars at the house of an honest mechanic. My provisions for a week consisted of a large loaf of rye bread, a little cheese, a piece of bacon and two or three pounds of beef. My mother had added to them a dozen apples.

This was the weekly provision of the best school of the school. The mistress of the house cooked for us, and for her trouble, her fire, her lamp, her bed, her housework, including even the vegetables of her little garden which she used for our soup, each of us gave her twelve pence halfpenny a month. I will follow her everything except my clothes, I cost my father between four and five pounds a year. This was much to him and an expense of which I was very anxious to see him relieved.

Agriculture News and Notes.

If you want to know how, when and what to spray, make with an application to the department of agriculture, Washington, for bulletin No. 3 on "Spraying."

A trial of ensiling turnips resulted disastrously at the Vermont station.

It is estimated that there are 60,000 miles of irrigation ditches in the state of Colorado.

The Farm Journal says that the wide wagon tire, if generally adopted, would pay the national debt by saving road taxes.

Experiments at the Kansas station prove that seed wheat is better and gives a heavier crop when matured than when cut green.

At the Vermont station naphthalene has been found to be an efficient repellent of moths, while pyrethrum and cedar chips were of no use for this purpose.

In the Poultry Yard.

Indian ganoes have never been considered great layers, but they are splendid eaters.

You want plenty of room for profitable poultry.

Give fowls all the milk they will drink. Fens will take grit and oyster shells both.

When chicks are 10 days old, begin feeding cracked corn and wheat, and as soon as they eat it readily make it the last meal at night.

A combination of laying hens and raising chickens to sell probably pays best. White, Silver or Golden Wyandottes, Barred or White Plymouth Rocks are the best all around breeds, says Farm Journal.

An Item on Beekeeping.

Unfinished sections—those filled or nearly filled with drawn comb left over from last year—are very valuable to give the bees a start in the spring. The editor of The Beekeeper's Review says: "In my experience these unfinished sections are worth nearly as much as sections filled with honey. The objection has been urged against them that their comb surface is uneven, and that when filled and sealed they do not have the smooth, clean appearance that we so admire in combs newly built from foundation. To remedy this unevenness some have pared down the surface of the combs with a knife. This is a slow, unpleasant and utterly unnecessary proceeding. An arrangement has been invented whereby the cells can be shortened and the combs brought to a level as rapidly as the sections can be handled."

Notes in Passing.

"Chemicals and clover" are bringing about radical changes on the poorer soils of Long Island and New Jersey.

"Fertilized farming" is very much the fashion just now among progressive farmers in the eastern states who are working worn soils.

Clover, which is even more readily winter killed than wheat, succeeds best on land naturally dry, or which has been thoroughly underdrained.

One of the regulations of the Columbia exhibition demands in requiring the use of wide tires on the heavy team wagons employed in the grounds.

Secure Sites.

This statement is made in the Jersey Bulletin: "Sites may be made perfectly secure by either one of two plans, and if thoroughly planned on all sides and the joinings laid in lead they will last many years. The most fertile source of decay in wooden shingles is the alternate wetting and drying of the wood. Wood kept either perfectly wet or perfectly dry will last indefinitely.

In the Vegetable Garden.

Following are gleanings from The Farm Journal:

Don't plant too many varieties of beets. The old reliable Swiss chard—Egyptian for very early and German for main crop. All seedmen keep these kinds.

For tender lettuce find the right way to lay a board on each side of the row. It keeps the earth cool and retains the moisture a long time. Mine last year was the marvel of the neighborhood. It grew so freely through the dry, hot weather.

A common practice with market gardeners is to set out early cabbage in rows 2 or 24 feet apart in April, and a month later to plant the horse radish between the rows of cabbage. The crown of the radish, which is four inches below the surface, so it will not interfere with the cultivation of the cabbage until last of June. Set plants 18 inches apart.

Plant a few bush beans, if the family relies on them, a little later than the peas. They will better endure the warm weather of summer.

Things That Are Told.

A New York World correspondent says: "I have found that frequent dressings during the growing period of asparagus are better than one heavy dressing. I have had better success by this plan. Guano and salt mixed, is an excellent manure. With late asparagus moisture is an important factor. My rule is a good top dressing and then irrigation of the bed."

It is generally the biggest and best cocker that goes down with leg weakness, says the Farm Journal. Birds that grow rapidly or are overstimulated lose their nervous force and succumb to this disease. We would not keep a bird of this kind for breeding purposes.

Mr. James Rankin says that a good deck will produce as many eggs as a hen and at a season when eggs bring the highest price.

The Uses on the Niger.

Ivory necklets often very heavy, are only worn by the two women of wealth and importance, but the metal anklets worn by others may be many pounds in weight, and some of them wear huge brass plates, perhaps a foot in diameter, which, once fixed to the ankles, are never removed. The men wear a single strip of cotton cloth, but those who come into contact with the Europeans are now learning to wear trousers. Their weapons are flintlocks, bows and spears—the latter both for hunting and thrusting.

The huts are built of mud and matting and are quadrangular in shape. The center is an open courtyard, at one end of which is the apartment of the head of the house, while the wives and family are accommodated in other rooms on the right and left of the courtyard. There is no furniture or ornament, and but a few household utensils and weapons.—All the Year Round.
